'5 parade 'largest'

BYU Staff Writer

Centennial Parade will be the largest and most elaborate ever for the school, according to Mary Ann, assistant chairman of the parade.

The parade will feature floats in uniforms of the 1900s, and 1976 will be the 100th anniversary of the school's founding.

festive days to cap Y's 100th

Two full days and nights of activities will climax BYU's 100th birthday and Centennial Homecoming Week Friday and Saturday.

Alumni from throughout the United States, Canada and several foreign countries will converge on campus for the celebration.

The most significant events of the week will be held today on Founder's Day, beginning at 8 a.m. with a traditional march from lower campus to upper campus, followed by an academic procession to the Marriott Center at 9:30 a.m.

President Spencer W. Kimball of the LDS Church, will participate in the march, riding in an early-model automobile along with other Church and school dignitaries. They will be followed by approximately 3,000 alumni, students, faculty and administration.

President Kimball will be the featured speaker at the 10 a.m. Centennial convocation which officially marks the 100th anniversary of the founding of BYU. Representatives from schools across the nation, as well as from various levels of government, will participate in the convocation.

Following the convocation in the Marriott Center, at which President Kimball will dedicate the Centennial Carillon Tower, he will play the first official tune on the bronze bells after unveiling a dedicatory plaque.

The Centennial Founder's Day luncheon will be held at 12:30 p.m. in the Wilkinson Center Ballroom, followed by a 2 p.m. carillon dedicatory recital by Dr. John T. Longhurst, official carillonneur.

Classes have been dismissed for the day so that students may participate in the morning activities.

In addition to a large number of college, department and organization reunions both today and Saturday, the Harold B. Lee Library is conducting a symposium on the opening of the Wallace F. Bennett papers at 2 p.m. in 184 JKB.

Pres. Dalin H. Oaks will be the featured speaker at the Centennial Alumni Banquet at 5:45 p.m. in the ELWC Ballroom, at which time Centennial chairman Dr. Lorin F. Wheelwright will be honored as an honorary BYU alumnus. Banquet participants will also view the special Centennial motion picture, "Harvest of a Century."

Tonight's activities end with the 8 p.m. performance of "Right Honorable Saint," in the Pardoe Drama Theater, a concert by the A Cappella Choir and Philharmonic Orchestra in the de Jong Concert Hall, and an 8:30 p.m. performance of Centennial Frolics in the Marriott Center.

A fireworks extravaganza will be held tonight following the Frolics. The fireworks will be shot from the Helaman Fields about 10:45 p.m.

Saturday activities begin with the 9 a.m. Centennial Homecoming parade from the Smith Fieldhouse parking lot south on University Avenue to Center Street and east to Memorial Park.

The football game between BYU and the Air Force Academy at 1:30 p.m., highlights the afternoon. The third annual BYU Soccer Invitational will be held at 6 and 8 p.m. on Haws Field.

Centennial Frolics will begin at 7:30 p.m. Saturday night. The play "Right Honorable Saint" and choir and orchestral performances will also be repeated Saturday at 8 p.m.

Tickets are still available for the Homecoming Dances which begin at 9:30 Saturday in the ELWC Ballroom, the Sharon East State Center and the University Mall. Tickets are $3.50 per couple and are available at the Marriott Center.

Washington (AP) — President Ford said Thursday night he would not hesitate to veto an election-year, tax-cut bill if the Democratic Congress "plays politics by sending a tax-reduction bill to my desk" without cutting federal spending.

Ford told a nationally televised and broadcast news conference that the American people want a $28-billion tax cut and an equal reduction in the growth of federal spending.

"I absolutely without any equivocation say that if the Congress plays politics by sending a tax reduction bill to my desk without cutting federal spending, I won't hesitate to veto it," the President said.

Ford said his tax proposal "was not aimed at affecting the economy in any significant way whatsoever" but was "aimed at getting a meaningful tax reduction" for the nation's taxpayers.

Ford said he has been watching the national public opinion polls, and finds there evidence of a consensus that federal spending should be curbed and that the government should take less money out of the pockets of the taxpayers.

Ford also disclosed that he had cancelled a trip to Louisville, Ky., which had been planned for next Thursday, on the advice of local officials. He said they suggested it be called off because of "unusual circumstances." Officials in Louisville said they anticipated large-scale demonstrations against court-ordered school busing for racial integration.

The President said he will continue to travel where he considers it appropriate. But he said he dropped the Louisville trip for reasons of security, and also to avoid a risk of injury to anyone else.

"There has been some turmoil in Louisville as a result of court ordered forced busing to achieve racial balance in the public schools," Ford said. He said once again that he opposes such busing.

On another matter, Ford indicated an announcement of a U.S.-Soviet agreement on the sale of American grain to Russia will be made shortly.

He said a grain estimate would be released today by the Agriculture Department and "as soon as we get that report I presume there will be some announcement as to the further sale of grain to the Soviet Union."

The President added that the grain agreement will come before an accord is reached on the sale of Soviet oil to the United States.

Elder Dunn to speak at Tuesday devotional

Elder Paul H. Dunn of the First Council of the Seventy will speak at the devotional assembly Tuesday at 10 a.m. in the Marriott Center.

A native of Provo, Elder Dunn often speaks to youth. Prior to his call to the First Council of the Seventy in 1964, he coordinated LDS Institutes of Religion in Southern California.

He has served as president of the New England States Mission and is the author of several books, including "You Too Can Teach," "The Ten Most Wanted Men," "Four Faith Promoting Classics," and "Win If You Will."

He graduated from Chapman College with an A.B. degree in religion in 1953, and later received M.S. and Ph.D. degrees in educational administration from the University of Southern California.

Elder Dunn has also played professional baseball for four years.

Prophet to ring in Y second century

By CYNTHIA HUNT

Universe Staff Writer

BYU's second century will be symbolically rung in when LDS Church President Spencer W. Kimball plays the bells of the Centennial Carillon Tower today. This will begin the bells' service to BYU.

President Kimball will participate in the dedication of the tower at 11:45 a.m. by playing the hourly theme from "Come, Come Ye Saints," then ringing the chime 12 times. Carillonneur Dr. John T. Longhurst will follow with a brief musical demonstration.

A 30-40 minute dedicatory recital, featuring a cross-sampling of music, is scheduled to be played by Dr. Longhurst, associate professor of music on leave from BYU, at 2 p.m.

Dr. Longhurst recommended listening to the carillon from a distance of at least 500 feet, as the "clash" dissipates before the sound travels that far.

The performance is not dependent on the weather. "Carillon concerts go no matter what the weather,"

Dr. Longhurst explained. If it rains, he said, people can park their cars in nearby parking lots and listen through rolled-down windows instead of sitting on the hill near the carillon.

Dr. Longhurst said that one role of the carillon is to reflect the mood of the campus in the celebration of events. This is what is planned for the BYU carillon.

"It will be playing after the football game," the carillonneur explained, discussing the homecoming game, "Air Force and BYU songs will be played to try to capture the mood of that game."

Dr. Longhurst plans for appropriate carillon music to frame the devotional assemblies and set the mood for these.

Plans are for music to be played evenings at 5 p.m., Sunday afternoons and possibly during the noon hour. These plans are dependant on public reaction and may change, he said.

The hour and half-hour will be chimed by the carillon. A concert role is the other role of the carillon, according to Dr. Longhurst. There are no current plans for outside recitalists to perform at BYU, however.

The carillon will be played by Dr. Longhurst and two graduate assistants, Terry Donat and Paul Shurtz.

Prior to this summer, Dr. Longhurst had no experience on the carillon. He spent five weeks studying in the East this summer. Part of the time was spent under Frank Law, president of the Guild of Carillonneurs of North America. He played at six of eight carillons in the East, he said. On his trip back to BYU he stopped at several universities with carillons to "try to get a feel for how the carillon becomes part of the campus."

Dr. Longhurst has been practising and testing the carillon as it has been installed.

He has enjoyed playing the carillon. "It's really a blast," he said. "The biggest thrill is to be in the tower under the bells playing them mechanically."

President Spencer W. Kimball will ring the Carillon into service at 11:45 a.m.

Charge facing cager dropped

A misdemeanor charge stemming from an apparent dormitory prank was dismissed Thursday against Brigham Young University basketball player Vern Thompson, but the school will consider whether its rules were broken.

Thompson, 20, a sophomore and law enforcement student from Renton, Wash., originally was charged with aggravated assault, a felony. But that charge was reduced at a preliminary hearing Tuesday to intent to do bodily injury.

Deputy County Atty Robert L. Moody said the facts "simply don't add up to a felony charge."

Acting City Judge Ron Stanger dismissed the misdemeanor charge when Thompson appeared for trial Thursday wearing a blue suit and flanked by several team members. They appeared relieved when the charge was dismissed.

"The state chose not to present any evidence in the case," the judge said.

J. Elliott Cameron, dean of student life at the school, said the matter will be taken under advisement to determine if any university rules were broken.

University security officers said the charge stemmed from an incident last month when Thompson allegedly brandished a revolver after returning to his dormitory and finding other students had placed a bale of straw in his room and covered it with a sheet.

Dave Ford, a resident of Thompson's dormitory, said Thompson took out a gun and pointed it at him, saying, "If you had something to do with this, I'll shoot your butt off."

But another student, Mel Maxwell, said Thompson thought the whole thing was a joke and was laughing along with others in the room.

He said the gun was never pointed at anyone and was unloaded.

During the hearing Tuesday

a gun allegedly used in the incident and obtained by security officers was shown to two prosecution witnesses who testified it was not the same gun Thompson had in his possession.

"The whole thing started out as a practical joke and has been blown out of proportion," Thompson said Tuesday.

He said he also was upset by the publicity.

Thompson was recruited last spring and is expected to play at guard or forward this season.

Strudel, yodeling to cap German fest

Free apple strudel, a root beer-drinking contest, yodeling, and German food, singing and dancing will be part of German Week activities next week at BYU.

According to Bob Prince, publicity director of the German Club, German Week activities will be held Monday through Thursday and will include German displays in the ELWC Step-down Lounge from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. Between 11 a.m. and noon each day the German choir and German Folk Dancers will perform.

On Thursday there will be a celebration of "Oktoberfest" in the SFLC Step-down Lounge. The festivities will include a root beer-drinking contest, German food, yodeling and folk dancing lessons.

Prince said it will be necessary to have a German Club activity card to be admitted to "Oktoberfest" Thursday, however, it isn't necessary to be taking a German class or be a member of the German Club to obtain an activity card.

The cards can be obtained in 326 MCKB.

Dr. Nibley to discuss 'vestures'

Dr. Hugh Nibley will speak to the Israeli Awareness Club at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday in 321 ELWC.

His subject, "Sacred Vestures," will concern the role of religious garments worn in the Israelite temples.

Dr. Nibley graduated "summa cum laude" at UCLA and received his Ph.D. from the University of California at Berkeley. He worked with military intelligence during World War II. He has taught at Claremont College in California and has received the David O. McKay award at BYU.

He has published over 75 magazine articles in the "Ensign," "Classical Journal," "Ancient World," and the "Jewish Quarterly Review." He is the author of six books including "World of the Prophet," "Since Cumorah," "Lehi in the Desert," "The World of the Jaredites," and his latest work, "The Message of the Smith Papyrus."

Both club members and the public are invited to attend.

Joining of SLC school to Y college recounted

By DENNIS PATTERSON
Universe Staff Writer

The McCune School of Music and Art in Salt Lake City became a branch of BYU within the College of Fine Arts in 1952, but this status ended after only five years.

The school, located at 200 N. Main Street, was named after Alfred William McCune, a prominent citizen who became wealthy in the mining industry, according to the Deseret News of June 16, 1957.

McCune left Salt Lake City and moved to Los Angeles, Calif. Before leaving, he donated his home, known to local citizens as the McCune Mansion, to President Heber J. Grant.

Dr. Ernest L. Wilkinson, former president of BYU, said that President Grant didn't want a home fit for kings—it was much too fancy for him.

Gardo House in Salt Lake City, was moved to the McCune mansion and became known as the McCune School of Music and Art.

The school had a faculty of about 30 members and a cumulative yearly enrollment of 2,000, according to a 1957 newspaper interview with N. Lorenzo Mitchell, the director of the McCune School.

All ages taught

"Instruction was given at all ages, on the elementary school, secondary school and college levels," reported Mitchell to BYU in 1957.

The curriculum comprised music theory, applied music, modern dance, creative art, speech and drama.

The school offered a degree in music with majors in piano, violin, orchestral instruments, voice, organ, composition and music.

"With the opening of fall classes, Sept. 22, 1952, the school became a branch of the College of Fine Arts of BYU under Dean Gerrit de Jong Jr., and with Mitchell continuing as director.

Decision to close school

"As time progressed the school came under severe criticism by accreditation agencies who felt that it hurt BYU's academic standing," said Dr. Wilkinson.

He went on to say that "the McCune school had been a great burden to the church and had been operating in the red much of the time."

When the decision was made to close the school, Dr. Wilkinson announced that "the McCune School of Music and Art has been operating practically on the basis of a private school without the necessary relationship with the Church university."

Another reason for closing the school was given by Dr. Wilkinson in an interview with the Deseret News which was published Jan. 15, 1957. "The school has no religious instruction included in its curriculum which is required of students of all other Church schools."

"Another problem with the school was that it had no organized classes. Instruction was solely on a one-to-one basis between the student and instructor," said Dr. Wilkinson.

Therefore, on Aug. 31, 1957, forty years after its origin and only five years after BYU took the McCune School of Music and Art under its wing, its doors were closed.

Anti-Franco soldiers arrested

MADRID, Spain (AP) — New evidence of unrest in the Spanish army, a traditional source of strength for Gen. Francisco Franco, was revealed Thursday in the arrest of three officers with possible links to Basque separatist guerrillas.

As Franco, under pressure at home and abroad, faced his worst political crisis ever, army headquarters in Barcelona announced they had arrested three officers in connection with investigations into an underground network of antigovernment subversives.

Fourteen officers now have been arrested in the investigations. Nine have been charged with sedition. Political opponents of the regime say they have enlisted the support of hundreds of young officers and charged that army authorities dare not follow their probe to the source for fear of setting loose a landslide of dissidence.

Military sources said the three were known to be closely linked to the 11 officers previously arrested—two in Barcelona last February and nine in Madrid in August.

The army also announced a special antisubversive brigade was engaged in maneuvers in the Cordoba area. The army described the maneuvers as routine, but observers could remember no precedent.

In Barcelona, the military sources identified the three officers as artillery Maj. Enrique Lopez-Amor, cavalry Capt. Arturo Gurrearan Granados and infantry Capt. Juan Diego Garcia.

Police sources, meanwhile disclosed that another army officer was detained last month in connection with the arrest of Jose Mugia Arregui, military leader of the Basque separatist movement, Basque Land and Liberty (ETA).

ETA is believed responsible for a majority of the 21 police killings so far this year.

Mugica, accused in the December 1973 assassination of Premier Luis Carrero Blanco, is currently awaiting trial and is widely expected to be convicted and executed.

Project Mexico notes progress

BRUCE LEE, staff writer, said Dr. Ted Lyon, coordinator of Latin American Studies, Wednesday.

Service project

Project Mexico is a study service project. In 1975 it involved seven faculty members from different colleges of BYU and 99 students from varying universities. These students went into the villages, lived with the people and attempted to train them in seven basic areas.

These areas included agriculture, construction, English as a second language, genealogy, health and nutrition, literacy and youth leadership.

Project Mexico is a service project, Dr. Lyon said. The idea is not to simply help the people for two months, but to train them so they can help themselves after the students leave, he added.

"When 120 students pay for the opportunity to serve other human beings, it's difficult for a project like this to fail," said Dr. Frank Santiago, coordinator of Project Mexico.

Dr. Ted Lyon, coordinator of Latin American Studies, explains the project during a session of experience-swapping.

Reasons for success

"The success of Project Mexico can be attributed to these three things," said Dr. Santiago. "First, identifying needs and working through local church leaders. Second, the service orientation of the program and, third, the obvious dedication of faculty, students and participants."

Judy Bangerter, a student participant in the program for two years, commented that the program caused a great change in the villages in the two years that she was there.

Examples

A filmstrip, which was put together by Dr. Lyon and S. Kenneth Robbins, communications specialist in the Division of Continuing Education, tells some of the successes of the program.

One of the examples was a quote from a Mexico woman who had been helped by the program in the area of literacy.

"I understand that the glory of God is intelligence, but my progress was blocked because I could not read. Now I can progress. I thank these students that helped me," she said.

Another example is a letter from a representative still in the area.

"We remember your non-complaining attitudes. Your courage and sincere love and concern for the people. We will also remember the things you taught us, the example you set, the hope you gave that some would grasp the things you worked so hard to teach," the letter said.

Plans have not been finalized for the project next year, but it is hoped that the project will not go to Mexico, but to countries further south, said Dr. Santiago.

He said that anyone interested in going next year would need to have as much knowledge as possible of Spanish and of one of the basic areas taught.

U.N. officials held hostage, Latin captors seek asylum

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — A dozen Latin refugees holding five United Nations officials hostage for the second day waited Thursday for a country to give them asylum. Argentina has agreed to give them safe passage.

"We are still waiting and we are not going to leave until we get a country to take us," said the apparent leader of the group, a man with a Brazilian accent, who called himself group spokesman.

He said negotiations were going on with seven countries, including Belgium, Sweden, Denmark and an unidentified Socialist nation.

The refugee spokesman was referred to as "number one" by a woman with a Chilean accent, who answered the phone at the offices of the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees. The group seized the officers with guns at midday Wednesday, demanding haven in another country because they were destitute in Argentina.

The hostages included Robert Jean Muller, the Swiss chief representative of the High Commissioner for Refugees in Argentina, and nationals of Austria, Chile and Argentina.

Canadians stop Kings

AP Sports

The game had been billed as a forecast of the James Norris Division first-place race: the Los Angeles Kings against the Montreal Canadiens in the National Hockey League season opener for both clubs.

If it was, in fact, a preview of things to come, there's trouble on the West Coast. The Canadians destroyed the Kings 9-0, with four players scoring two goals apiece and goalie Ken Dryden stopping a Bart Crashley penalty shot. "It didn't look like the same Los Angeles team," offered Dryden, who stopped 29 shots on the way to the first shutout of the 59th NHL season.

Cats ready for AF

By DOUG ARMSTRONG
Universe Sports Writer

The Cougars hope to keep that winning feeling alive when they entertain the Air Force Academy in the Y's Homecoming game Saturday at 1:30 p.m. in Cougar Stadium.

The Mountain Cats, raring to go after a stunning come-from-behind victory in last week's encounter with New Mexico, will wait until game time to determine who will be the starting quarterback.

Last week Gifford Nielsen wore the hero's laurel after coming in late in the third quarter with the Cats on the short end of a 12-0 score and directing the Cougars to two touchdowns and a field goal to eke out a close 16-15 victory.

But Mark Giles is the veteran, and although a slight injury forced him out of last week's affair, he is still considered a great team leader. His statistics back this up.

Giles is ranked eighth in total offense in the WAC, and BYU's offense is ranked third in passing and rushing behind the southern powerhouses, Arizona State and Arizona.

He is completing 51 per cent of his passes, averaging a little more than nine yards a completion. He is also the second leading punter in the conference, averaging 43.7 yards per punt.

Jeff Duvu, who played in his first varsity game against New Mexico, is also slated to see some action.

The Cats expect to start Jeff Blanc in the tailback slot, with Dave Lowry scheduled to open at the fullback position. Lowry filled in for the injured Roger Gourley, who was filling in for the injured Todd Christensen during the UNM game. He picked up 30 yards and punted six times for an average of 40 yards.

Mark Giles will do the punting this weekend, and Christensen will come off the injury list to share the fullback duties with Lowry.

The only other change in the lineup that started last week will see 6-7, 270-pound Dave Hubbard replace Dave Meter at the offensive tackle spot.

The Cougars enter the contest with a 1-3 record, but

The Falcons have started nationally-ranked UCLA slower. They are sporting a Bruins. This is the third meeting they did look favorable between the teams, and the couple of weeks ago in a Falcons have never beaten the 20-20 tie with the Cougars. Last year the Cats defeated the Air Force in a hard-fought struggle. 1965, the Cats had a easier time, whipping Falcons 34-21.

Freshman kicker Taylor, who split the up for a game-winning 30-yard goal against UNM, once again handle the chores.

Coach LaVell Edwards the Air Force hard-hitting, well-disciplined team, and "we expect to our work cut out for us."

Harriers to run

BYU cross-country with a 3-0 record, Laramie Saturday. The Wyoming harriers, "There was an inch of snow in Laramie last week. It will be good for our team to run in weather conditions similar to those they will face in the WAC championships this November, as they will be held in Laramie," he said.

A new addition to the Cougars travel squad for the meet will be Lamont Palmas. Palmas ran in last Saturday's harriers. "There was an inch of snow in Laramie last week. It will be good for our team to run in weather conditions similar to those they will face in the WAC championships this November, as they will be held in Laramie," he said.

Cougars travel squad for the meet will be Lamont Palmas. Palmas ran in last Saturday's harriers. "There was an inch of snow in Laramie last week. It will be good for our team to run in weather conditions similar to those they will face in the WAC championships this November, as they will be held in Laramie," he said.

"We like to give all the members of the team a chance to earn a starting position when we run at home," he said. "To do this we enter them as independents. When an independent defeats one of our starters, he earns the right to travel with the seven-man team."

Palmas, a freshman from Tlalmanaleco, Mexico, participated in the Mexican national cross-country championships last month and captured fifth in the event. He averaged about 5:05 per mile on the 20-mile Mexico city course.

Three Cougar starters — Richard Reid, Stig Husby and Keenan Hart — are nursing injuries. Hart will not make the trip, but the other two should be able to compete in the meet, James said. The other BYU runners will be undefeated Paul Cummings, Benton Hart, Henry Marsh and Jay Woods.

BYU's Benton Hart passes Phil Meyer of the Marine Corps to capture second place in this year's first cross-country meet.

Series starts Saturday Tiant, Gullett will pitch

BOSTON (AP) — It will be Boston's herby-jerky Luis Tiant, the man with a million motions, pitching against more conventional Don Gullett of Cincinnati when the Red Sox and the Reds open the 1975 World Series in cozy Fenway Park Saturday.

Tiant was an 18-game winner during the regular season and tossed a powerful three-hitter against Oakland last Saturday when the Red Sox began their destruction of the A's.

His unorthodox pitching motion could cause a controversy in the Series. Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson insists that Tiant's routine constitutes a balk, and if the National League umpires assigned to the series agree, there could be plenty of howling.

Gullett, a hard-throwing left-hander, won 15 games for the Reds but missed a large chunk of the summer because of a broken thumb. He also pitched Cincinnati to its opening game victory over Pittsburgh in the National League playoffs.

Boston and Cincinnati both looked awesome in sweeping their respective playoff series. Both teams are loaded with hitters who can take advantage of that close left field fence at Fenway.

"I can't wait to get there," exulted Pete Rose, the peppery Cincinnati veteran, whose eighth-inning homer helped the Reds turn around the third and final game of the NL playoff against Pittsburgh.

Rose will be at third base for the Reds. His switch from left field was the turning point in the season for the team which had split its first 40 games but then took off to win 68 of the remaining 122. Rose batted .317 and was a perpetual cheerleader for Cincinnati.

He is the captain of the Reds and the team's leader on the field. For Boston, that job rests on the broad shoulders of Carl Yastrzemski.

Haz gave the Red Sox pizzazz against Oakland, hitting a big home run over that friendly left field fence and contributing several other clutch hits and fielding plays to the three-game sweep of the A's.

Yastrzemski spent the regular season at first base but was switched to left field for the playoffs to compensate for the loss of slugger Jim Rice, who suffered a broken hand in the final weeks of the divisional race.

Battling a sore shoulder, he hit .269 with 14 homers in the regular season, but most teams fear Yaz as much or more than the rest of the Red Sox cast.

Chevette from Heathman-Brown in Provo

So here you are at BYU—2,000 miles from home and you need a car. What do you do?

Heathman-Brown has a suggestion.

Try us here in Provo. We understand your situation. Although we're a new name in the business, we've given a lot of thought to your problems.

Number One. We know that money is probably your biggest problem. So, when you come in to look at a "Chevette" we won't sell you a "Corvette."

Number Two. Most likely you'll be moving on after graduation, and you're concerned about the kind of service you'll get when you're here. Heathman-Brown guarantees you the same concern and service as our established local customers.

Number Three. Your time is limited—not only because of studies, but with a multitude of demands on your spare moments. We won't waste it. When you make a service appointment, we promise your car by 2 p.m.—it'll be ready.

Come down today and see that we mean what we say. While you're at it, test drive the new 40-mile-per-gallon Chevette, and see that the American economy car can do for you.

NCAA football playoffs: Proposition under fire

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Representatives of at least four major conferences appear set to oppose formation of a long-awaited national collegiate football playoff for large schools.

But the president of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, which announced Wednesday it will put the matter to a vote, says such opposition should be weighed.

"We, the members of the council, are merely forwarding the proposal for a vote by members of Division I large schools," said John A. Fuzak of Michigan State, president of the 707-member NCAA.

"But I think it would be very difficult for that group, that committee, to speak for the institutions they represent," Fuzak added in reference to opposition The Associated Press learned exists.

Fuzak, who is also chairman of the NCAA's policy-making council, declined to give a breakdown of the vote among a 17-member football championship feasibility committee which recommended the playoff.

Prior to the Wednesday announcement, however, the AP learned that the tabulation was 8-4 for the advancement of the proposal, with five committee members absent from a meeting last weekend.

Voting on the proposal during the Jan. 14-17 annual NCAA convention in St. Louis will be delegates of 134 Division I schools, many of them faculty representatives.

If accepted by a majority of Division I members, the playoff plan would probably go into effect in January, 1977. A 10-member NCAA executive committee is to detail the plan for presentation at the convention.

Veteran's last season

Henchen to play in tourney

By JOE HAMMER
Universe Sports Writer

One of the Cougars most experienced soccer players begins his last season this year.

Hans Henchen, a veteran of 15 years on the soccer field, has played for the Cougars since 1971.

Soccer buffs can see Henchen and the rest of the Cougar soccer squad in action starting today at the 4th annual Invitational Soccer Tournament, hosted by BYU. The tournament will begin today at 6 p.m. at Haw's field, just west of the Smith Fieldhouse.

The tournament will continue Saturday at 4 p.m., with the final match for first and second places beginning at 6 p.m. Admission will be $1 a day for adults. Children under 12 will be admitted free.

Henchen will add experience and talent to the Cougar attack this weekend. According to soccer Coach Jim Dursara, Henchen is "an excellent defensive player with an all-around ability to play in any position." He usually plays halfback.

From Frankfurt, Germany, Henchen began playing soccer at the age of six, something, he says, is not unusual for European boys.

He was trained as a machinist, but, he said, physical education remained his first desire.

LDS missionaries converted him 10 years ago and recommended the physical education department at BYU. He came to America and started playing for the Y in 1971.

This is his last season for the Cougars. He graduates in December and will continue work thereafter on a Masters Degree in physical education.

Henchen said pro soccer lures him as well. Three pro teams, the Los Angeles Aztecs, the Seattle Sounders and the San Jose Earthquakes, have contacted Coach Dursara about members of the team, including Henchen. The versatile halfback says he'd like to play pro ball.

Team action will highlight tournament play this weekend, Henchen said. "It's a team effort in soccer," he adds. "It requires a talented performance from all the players, much like basketball."

In his opinion, however, the sport is different from football, where one or two players can star, with the help of teammates' fundamental blocking. In soccer, he says, every player must work with the others, to pass quickly and score.

Hans Henchen, BYU halfback, heads the ball. The 5-10, 175-pound player is from Frankfurt, West Germany.

Y golfers Girls' hockey visit N.M. shuts out Utes

The BYU golf team is in Albuquerque this week for the William H. Tucker Intercollegiate Invitational Golf Tournament, sponsored by the University of New Mexico.

The tournament began Wednesday. At press time, results of the match were not available.

The Tucker Intercollegiate is one of the most prestigious college events in the nation. Entered in this year's meet is pre-tournament favorite Wake Forest, the defending NCAA golf champion.

The Forest team has such members as Jay Hays, 1975 NCAA individual medal winner and Curtis Strange, 1974 NCAA medalist.

Spending most of its time on the University of Utah side of the field, the BYU women's hockey team ran away with a 7-0 win over its long-time rival Wednesday afternoon on the BYU field.

The biggest factor of the game, according to BYU Coach Kathy Lewis, was the amount of practice each team had prior to the match. "The U. squad just returned to school and had only four days of practice," she explained. "We've had four weeks of practice."

"We played the game very well," Coach Lewis said when we met her later in the season, it a different story."

Following two offensive drives, Carey playing in the right position, shot for the two goals of the game.

With good assists a work from Sarah P. Debbie Bennett, Ann scored BYU's third goal. Debbie Bennett of the next two goals, the score to 5-0.

Although there were outstanding drives a movements by Betty of Utah, they failed the rallying Cougar BYU's Lauren Stewart.

Finally, with an assist Debbie Bennett, Jan pushed in BYU's first point.

The field hockey faces Boise State Friday in Boise.

The team, which is sanctioned by the series of matches intermountain throughout this according to Miss Lewis said she anticipates a effort from her members.

Football ticket pick-up begins 8 a.m. Saturday

First-come, first-served tickets for the BYU-Air Force game will be distributed at the southeast corner of Cougar Stadium beginning at 8 a.m. tomorrow.

Randy Martin, ticket chairman for the ASBYU Athletics Office, announced "no sleeping out will be allowed," and students are encouraged from standing in line before the ticket distribution begins.

He said that approximately 2,000 tickets will be available. Once these tickets run out, students will be admitted to the game with activity cards. The first-come tickets are located on the 30-yard line at both ends of the east bleachers.

Randy Smith, assistant ticket chairman, once again explained details about the ticket distribution.

He said, "We have 6,800 tickets for block seating. Because we only have that many, we allot them to branches and clubs that have block seating lists. We know there aren't enough to go around, so we alternate the last digit of social security numbers for pickup time. This way the same student won't be left out every time."

While a student at BYA in 1878, Susa Young wrote in an essay for Dr. Karl G. Maeser: "While my desire to gain knowledge could be gratified in schools and colleges of the various cities in the Territory, yet, so far as I know, no school combines religious training with other first-class advantages, as does the Brigham Young Academy. It was with this fact mainly in view, that I entered my name as a student."

Miss Young, a daughter of President Brigham Young, was born March 18, 1856, in the Lion House in Salt Lake City.

She attended the University of Deseret and was the associate of the West's first college paper, "The College Lantern."

During the academy's 1878-1879 school year, she assisted in organizing the Music Department at BYA. During this time she was also an assistant instructor in photography. She also helped organize and was the head of the Domestic Economy Department from 1896 until 1897.

From 1889 until 1911, she served on the General Board of the Young Ladies Mutual Improvement Association, and, in 1889, established the "Young Women's Journal."

On May 8, 1911, she was called to the General Board of the Relief Society. From 1914 to 1921, she was a founder and editor of the Relief Society Magazine.

She served as a delegate and speaker to five congresses of the International Council of Women and also served as a delegate and officer of the National Council of Women.

She was the mother of 13 children — 10 boys and 3 girls. For many years she served as a member of BYA's Board of Directors. In an article in the "Young Women's Journal," she recalled her association with the academy: "The friendships and acquaintances formed in this beloved institution will go with me through all time and I hope throughout all eternity."

Susa Young was a daughter of President Brigham Young

For the venerable principal of that great school I have always felt a respectful affection. The one year I spend in the academy deepened that feeling into a reverent filial love, second only to that I feel for my honored earthly father. . . I had every advantage in life to be good and gracious, yet it remained to him to show me what bliss there was in a daily life and studious application of the laws of the gospel."

Alpine school days recalled

By DENNIS PATTERSON
Universe Staff Writer

Between 1922 and 1946, Aspen Grove was the site of BYU's late summer term known as the Alpine Summer School.

"The school was located at Aspen Grove on the west side of Mt. Timpanogos, on what is now known as the Alpine Loop," said Dr. Vasco M. Tanner, retired professor of zoology.

Low tests reflecting attitudes?

WASHINGTON (AP) Recent drops in college entrance examination scores may reflect high school students' more relaxed attitudes about attending college, says the president of the Educational Testing Service.

"It's no longer true that if you're in the top quarter of your class, you think you have to go to college," William W. Turnbull said.

Speaking to a group of reporters at a Washington Journalism Center seminar, Turnbull said many high school students are more willing to question their parents' values and concerns with higher education than were students of the early 1960s.

"I would speculate that in the early 1960s, there was a greater acceptance on the part of young people that one worked hard and tried to make it in the system," Turnbull said. "That acceptance of the adult middle-class value system has been eroding since the 1960s."

Another reason why many students are more relaxed about getting into college is that there are more colleges now, Turnbull said.

"I attribute this to a rise in community colleges. Kids today know they can get into the smaller colleges."

"In almost every area of the country, there is a college in reach. . . They're more willing to go to a college nearby than to a more competitive school."

Franklin S. Harris, former BYU president, established the Alpine Summer School because he felt conditions in the mountain environment were favorable to a close teacher-student relationship, according to Dr. Tanner.

"Summer school consisted of two sessions. The first, held at the BYU Provo campus, was six weeks long. Classes were held Monday through Friday," said Kiefer B. Sauls, former treasurer of BYU.

Attendance at the Alpine Summer School was relatively small when compared to the first session of summer school. Approximately 150 students were enrolled during the five-week session, Dr. Tanner recalled.

School was held six days each week instead of five. This cut the term down by one week, making it possible for students to finish six weeks' work in five, according to The Y News, May 13, 1931.

The curriculum included biology, geology, fine arts, nature work, sociology, English, psychology, history, philosophy and religion.

"BYU officials constructed cabins for the staff, an assembly hall, dining, commissary and dormitories for the students," Dr. Tanner said.

"Alpine Summer School was extremely popular with the students," he said, "because of the unique opportunity to use nature as a lab to study many of the subjects offered."

Enrollment grew in the 1940s, BYU's yearly enrollment began to grow rapidly. More students also wanted to attend summer school.

Because of the limited size of the physical facilities and the increased enrollment, in 1946 it was necessary to discontinue the use of Aspen Grove as the location for the second session of summer school. All subsequent sessions were held on the BYU campus.

Coyotes killing cattle?

PENDLETON, Ore. (AP) — Cattle found mutilated in Eastern Oregon recently may be the victims of coyotes, not knife-wielding humans, according to Dist. Atty. Riney Seeger of Hamey County.

Similar cattle deaths have been reported in Colorado, Utah, Idaho and Wyoming.

Of the cows he had seen, Seeger said he felt there was no human agent involved in the death.

"In this county, at this particular time, there are 10 times as many coyotes as normal, he said.

OPINION—COMMENT

Brigham Young University

Seek old friends for Homecoming

Homecoming... a time to return to a school, a town, people, memories. But is it really just that? Or is it something that should mean a lot more?

Over the year the term "homecoming" has been used to define a special time for alumni to return, but for current students it's just a football game, a concert and some strangers on campus.

The school belongs to the past as well as the present so something has to be done to celebrate annually, but maybe current students should redefine what can be done to make this a renewing time of year for them, too.

A better use of the time might be for each student to institute a personal program to expand friendships and love of school now, instead of waiting until leaving school.

Too often old friends are shuffled into the background and school spirit is only aroused for sporting events. A genuine appreciation is overlooked. So along comes homecoming and everyone who has graduated or even attended the school decides it's time to put on the best clothes and go see how the old alma mater is doing. So they return and have a grand old time.

Meanwhile the campus growing from the usual number of trekking students to enormous numbers of dignitaries and former students, especially when the Centennial Founder's Day comes about the same time. And the poor, average, struggling student can't find a place to sit in the Cougar or a quiet corner of the library to study in.

If this problem is there, and there's a good chance it is, maybe some of the more mental things such as studies and eating should be laid aside for a short time.

So homecoming approaches, preceded by Founder's Day, and the student's life is disrupted, so a new plan is initiated. The student transforms into a person and goes out into the world to seek out old friends and take a look at BYU, not as a prison, but as a beautiful educational institution.

The person sees things that the student never noticed. The older parts of campus, the Maeser Building, the Grant Building, the president's home. There are real trees and grass there and it's a nice place to be.

The fountains on campus seem more beautiful than ever before. Even the people are pleasant, there's a new feeling here. No one rushing around or worrying about classes makes the campus a "paradise lost," and found. Maybe all the bad things here were created by too much work and not enough fun time.

It's all going to end, but maybe things are going to be better for a student-person.

BYU family

Editor: The Centennial celebration of Brigham Young University has great significance to me and to my family. One cannot review the progress of the past hundred years without a sense of pride and satisfaction, not only for the physical growth but for the spiritual guidance it has given those who have passed under its influence. I've been privileged with the special events, the sculptures, the bell tower and all that is being done to mark this special occasion.

The special Centennial issue of The Daily Universe on Wednesday, October 8 on page 9 had a picture of the 1897 championship football team led by John A. Johansen, who was my father. Some of his history in connection with the Y may be of interest.

In order to get him to the university, his mother drove a team of horses and a wagon load of flour with him from Mt. Pleasant, Utah. This was to help pay his tuition—he worked for his board and room. Football, and the defeating of the University of Utah for the State championship on New Year's Day, was the highlight of the years at the Y Academy.

He obtained a teacher's certificate, taught school and saved money for a mission. After his marriage to my mother, Nellie Nielson of a divorce, they moved to Canada where they raised eight children. All of our lives, this picture that was published today was in our home, and my father talked lovingly of the Y.

It is no wonder then that in 1936 my sister Nellie and I came here as students, and the following year were joined by our two older sisters, Verl and Anna, and our parents who accompanied us—which seemed reason enough for a picture of us and a writup in the Y News that year.

From that time until now, in all but eight years, there have been some of the John A. Johansen descendants enrolled at the Y. At the present time there are me and my husband, four of his grandchildren and a great grandchild working towards a degree. Dad's 33 grandchildren, 28 have attended the Y (two more will on the return from their missions), 24 have graduated, some with masters and doctor's degrees. The mates they found here add another 22 graduates to their family list. For a grand total of children, grandchildren, great-grandchildren and in-laws, so far there have been 62 family members have been enriched by being a part of this great university. Yes and another generation are growing up headed this way.

On the occasion of the graduation June 5, 1954, the four surviving members of the famous football team were honored: my father, Frank Cox Jesse LeFevre and Arvil Larson. This was a great occasion for them. To me, he died, Aug. 23, 1957. Dad was a great supporter of BYU.

So it will be with pride, and with many tender memories of my father, and of other members of my family and of my own experiences here that my husband and I will march in the Centennial Procession

Varying personalities decide Varsity movies

Five individuals with differing tastes sit down as members of the entertainment film subcommittee. Each has a different view concerning the criteria and recommendation of films shown at BYU for student entertainment, and so it is no wonder they rarely come to a complete agreement.

The five included on the committee are Curt Wynder, assistant director of programming at the Wilkinson Center, chairman; Robert Moss, business manager of the Wilkinson Center; Jesse Stay, associate director of Media Development and Production; Robert Garrick, student, and Charles Metten, Theatre and Cinematic Arts Department Chairman.

The function of the committee is to review and recommend appropriate P.G.-rated films for showing at the Varsity Theater. That appropriateness varies with each member of the committee as the administration has never defined what an appropriate P.G. film is.

Each member of the committee familiarizes himself with current P.G. movies and then either recommends the movie or votes against it. The committee varies widely when it comes to this voting, with Garrick on the extreme liberal end and Metten on the conservative end with the others scattered in-between.

Wynder, for example, recommends movies on the basis of the director, producer, actors, characters, the story, setting and student interest. He looks for a current theme, a film that is well filmed, well-acted and one that will hold student interest. He feels there are some good P.G. movies.

Metten, on the other hand, who one would expect to base his recommendations on the criteria similar to Wynder, uses No. 10 in the Code of Honor. That portion of the code states, "Observe high standards of taste and decency. This includes refraining from disorderly, lewd, indecent, or obscene conduct and expression."

Metten said he doesn't go for just "bleeping" out words or scenes. He said he hasn't seen any P.G. shows that he could approve.

With such a diversity of opinions, it is no wonder students feel they are not seeing a wide variety of films on campus, but rather just a few that filter through the committee. It should also be noted that only one student sits on the committee, definitely stacking the odds against the students.

But the committee should

"You gonna wipe off that smirk, or do we have to settle this in New Hampshire?"

seek to maintain a level of students who want to see approve off campus. decency at BYU and let those P.G. films they will not

Media partner with Congress in propaganda dissemination?

The power of the press has been indecibly made clear because of Watergate and the influence of journalism on the American political system.

Radio and television journalism, as well as the print media, had a field day exposing the lack of ethical conduct in the Nixon administration. The author of the article, Ben Bagdikian, a long time contributing editor of Columbia Journalism Review lists the following starting facts: Fact: Congressman Joseph M. McDade from Pennsylvania hired reporter Bob Keese of the Scanlon Tribune to "cover" the Congressman's activities in Washington. Most Congressmen have at least one journalist working on their staff. This is true in the case of Sen. Jake Garn, who hired a promising young television journalist to be his press secretary at $20,000 a year. This kind of current activity, according to Bagdikian, has become a way of life for journalists.

The current ethical void in government is partly the fault of the press "not for what they do, but for what they do not."

radio and television, with a "reporter" rehearsed question receiving rehearsed others performed other courageous acts, as well. Pres. Oaks has stressed this year the importance of the importance of integrating the curriculum with material about women. Both men and women have made the Declaration of Independence, "Don't forget the ladies..."

Fact: The House Senate maintain the $500,000 studio complete facilities (video film and recording. Dup facilities are also available to one-twentieth the non-subsidized facilities include "set" duplicate Congress hearing rooms and that the "news" appear to have been or filmed "on the set" studios are also campaigning. Women in history

Editor: After postponing my History 170 sold for some time because of the famed, reputedly unstimulating TV lectures, I finally embarked on the class this fall. To my delight, I found four stimulating and well-planned, but also very interesting as background for our nation's bicentennial celebration.

However, after 14 lectures, I have come to the conclusion that the 170 course writers must feel that the only important Americans were men.

From the 1400's until 1820, women were not mentioned much more than twice (once when they were shipped en masse to Virginia to be sold as wives, and once when Anne Hutchinson rebelled against Puritan tyranny). There was but a brief 10-minute mention of the women's movement of the 1830 reformation era, which was extremely significant in many ways, but particularly labor reform and abolitionism.

Unfortunately, their struggle to gain the equality long deprived under a government that declared "all men are created equal," was simply brushed over by the authors.

It is true that men were the actual writers of the laws, the presidents, the office holders; but the women of our heritage also struggled, in many other ways.

Martha Washington jolted our rough road for eight years at a cost of over $5,000 to bring plantation goodies and good cheer to her husband and his troops.

Mercy Warren wrote many patriotic papers that enraged the British and won support for the women of our

Those who waited deserved tickets

There is no perfect ticket distribution policy. There never has been; there never will be.

Each time tickets are distributed on campus—whether to a concert, athletic event or something else—the same dilemma always arises. "What is the most equitable way of distributing tickets?" And the same complaint, "Why can't I get the best seats?"

Because the supply of "best seats" is low, the demand is high. Who should get the high demand tickets?

The answer is simple—the person who most deserves them.

And how is that to be determined?

Simple again—the one who is most willing to go out of his way to get the tickets.

Those who were the most upset about the tickets being sold early for the Seals and Crofts concert were not the ones who bought them early, but those who came at 9 a.m., or later, only to find the lower concourse sold out.

Their reaction took the form of righteous indignation. "What, the tickets were sold on the sabbath? At the Lord's University? Outrageous! Terrible! Satanic!" The point is, however, that those who were willing to stand in line the longest were rewarded. Those who came later, expecting laurels to be heaped on their heads, were not.

True, enough foresight should have been used so the situation would not have occurred on Sunday. But regardless of the day, those who had been waiting in line all night would still have gotten tickets before those who came later, no matter when they were sold.

Also true, those who opened the ticket office late that night should have realized those who bought tickets would go home and tell their roommates, who would probably also come and buy tickets. It's always easier, and much safer, to use hindsight and say what should have been done.

Not everyone has the time or desire to wait long hours in line to get good tickets. Not everyone can afford to own a ticket. Not everyone will get to the Celestial Kingdom. But just because all can't pay the price doesn't mean the prizes should be awarded free. Those who do pay the price, whether it is in time, money or spiritual oil, should be rewarded.

Centennial Frolics will be a family affair. Noelle Green, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Ronald Green of Palm Springs, Calif., will be a guest performer at the Frolics. Allen, publicity director for Frolics, Noelle, only eight years old, has been performing since the age of two in a variety of acts, including conducting, singing, and dancing. Presently, Noelle is performing in a production of Two by Two.

Two years, that was a marriage of the Young Ambassadors last year. Allen continued. Another member of the Green family, Noelle's brother Ronnie Green, is a freshman at BYU this year. He will be Frolics' emcee. If he continues, Noelle will continue. Noelle will probably be performing in the 1985 Frolics as a student at BYU, Allen concluded.
